Kumamoto University Online Public Access Catalog (熊大OPAC+)

You can search books or journals in the University.

<How to identify the vol. number of journals>

- Hyphenated (-) numbers... 「On campus」
- Numbers between separated by commas (,)... 「Not on campus」
- Plus (+) at the end of a number... 「Subscribed now」

例) 「1-15, 16(1, 3-6), 17(1)+」

On campus→All of vol.1~15、vol.16 no.1, no.3~6、vol.17 no.1

Not on campus→vol.16 no.2 (subscribed to subsequent issues)

(Ex.1) Book「Histology 8th ed Wojciech Pawlina, Michael H. Ross」

⇒Type「Histology△Pawlina△Ross」in the search box and click. ※△="space"

(Ex.2) Find an article in the journal「New England journal of Medicine」Vol. 319 No. 9.

Article「Genetic Alterations during Colorectal-Tumor Development」

⇒Search by OPAC using the journal title. Identify that vol. 319 no. 9 is on campus.

⇒Type「New△England△Medicine」⇒The search results show that the journal has two types of materials, a Journal(print Ver.) and an eJournal.⇒You can read the print ver. of the journal in the library, but also access electronic ver. of journal via the university computer network.

• Searching for journals in OPAC, use the title as a keyword. (Current Science⇒Curr. Sci.)

• If you know only the title of the article, use the DB for article search. (Look at next page)

Please remember to log out after use.

PubMed

PubMed is the largest life sciences materials databases, and is based around MEDLINE material provided by the U.S. National Library of Medicine.

English

Access information

Accessible from off-campus networks.
Some of the web links to the full-text page of the e-journal in Pubmed can only be accessed from the campus network.

In the bibliographic information on PubMed, journal titles are written in abbreviated form.

Journal⇒j, Japanese⇒Jpn, Medical⇒Med, American⇒Am, Sci → Science ..etc.

Use the official title when searching in the database. (By using the abbreviation followed by "*" is also OK)
